MAMMOTH CAVE AS VIEWED BY NEW YORKERS

Should be Placed in Hands of a Company who would Make it a Famous Resort.

Recently we had a story in this paper about the strike of the guides at Mammoth Cave. The Northern newspapers have had much to say about Kentucky's Wonder, and the Morning Sentinel, of Amsterdam, N. Y., has the following:

"For a day or two last week Kentucky's great natural wonder, the Mammoth Cave, was closed on account of a strike of all the guides employed by the management. Matters were speedily adjusted, however, and within 48 hours the faithful guides were at their posts and ready for duty. This is said to have been the first time that the cave has been closed to the public since 1898, a period of 103 years. Thirty years ago this wonderful exhibition of the handiwork of nature was better advertised than it is to-day, though it still surpasses in beauty, size and grandeur all the caves that have yet been explored. Some day, after the death of the last of the 11 nephews and nieces of Dr. John Croghan, who bequeathed the property to them at his death, many years ago, the property will be sold and the proceeds therefrom will be divided among the heirs of the cave. A few years ago there were but three of the eleven beneficiaries of Dr. Croghan's bequest alive. Should the cave fall into the hands of a modern American citizen with sufficient capital to advertise it and restore it to its pristine glory as one of the eight wonders of the world, it would easily become an all-the-year resort, with golf links, fishing and boating and hunting, the year round. It is a lamentable fact that to-day a large percentage of the people who visit the cave are Europeans who visit America and have the 'Mammoth Cave of Kentucky' marked on their itinerary before they leave their homes. But the main fault lies with the failure of the owners and managers to spend a single dollar in the form of advertising during the past quarter of a century. Had the great falls of Niagara been obscured from the view of the world for 48 hours, or been held up by a strike, the fact would have been known in every city of any size in the world, and even in the smaller cities, villages and hamlets where newspapers are published and read. But for the news of the cave's strike, we had to await the arrival of 'The Glasgow Times,' edited by James M. Richardson, within 19 miles of the earth's great cavern. A number of Amsterdammers have visited the Mammoth Cave on their trips to the South, but of recent years few have stopped on their journeys southward from Cincinnati and Louisville to see the marvelous silent testimonial to the puissance of the Ruler of the universe."

THOMPSON CASE TO BE TRIED IN JULY

Son Accused of Murdering Father Will be Tried on July 17.

Dixon, Ky., June 12.—Thomas Thompson, son, accused of the murder of his father, Henry Thompson, on December 26, will be tried before a jury in the Wabash County circuit court Monday July 17. The date for the trial was set by Circuit Clerk Withers. Court convenes here the first Monday in July.

Thirty-two witnesses have been summoned by the prosecution, among them being the alleged eye witness Brown.

There is very little talk openly about the murder case, but it is realized that there is a world of deep feeling that does not come to the surface. It is claimed that the sentiment here is crystallizing into a belief that Thompson will go absolutely clear and without the least trouble.

The whole case is up to Brown to prove. He is the man who claims that he was in the little clump of woods near Providence on Christmas day when he saw Thompson and young Benjamin in an argument with Henry Thompson, the merchant. He claims that Thompson slapped his son and that the son retaliated by pulling a gun and opening fire with deadly effect.

The fate of young Thompson depends on the ability of his attorneys to hatter down the testimony of this witness Brown and to discredit him in the eyes of the jury. Brown is not a Providence man. He is a new comer and his past is being raked over with fine-toothed comb. Some of the most enthusiastic of Thompson's friends claim that they will be able to bluff Brown out before the trial and that he will never take the witness stand.

It is expected that this trial will settle the case for all time, and it is generally conceded that if Thompson is acquitted the case will close and remain a sealed mystery for all time.

Crop Prospects Good.

Calhoun, Ky., June 14.—Corn gives promise of being one of Western Kentucky's heaviest crops this year. The corn acreage is said to be much heavier than it has been for several years, hardly a farmer having overlooked this feature in planning his summer's operations.

Reports received in Calhoun relative to the corn situation are uniform, practically all blang to the effect that the corn acreage is larger.

An indication of the extraordinary of the corn planting is gleaned in reports from Ohio and Davies counties to the effect that practically every farmer has planted from ten to 100 acres. In Melan county, where conditions are somewhat different from those of other counties, the corn acreage has increased markedly. In nearly all the other districts there has been an increase in the corn acreage.

Tobacco in this section is receiving the usual close attention.

MR. FRANKS' SPEECH AT BARBOURVILLE.

The following editorial from the Lexington Leader is a complete answer to Mr. Frank's contention concerning the propriety of Judge O'Rear's speech in the Second Congressional District:

Mr. E. T. Franks of Owensboro, one of the candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, fresh from a conference at the Victoria Hotel in Louisville with Lieutenant Governor W. H. Cox, Secretary of State Ben L. Bruner, Collector of Internal Revenue Lawson Reno of the Owensboro district and several others, at which the newspapers say it was decided to combine all the opposing elements in an anything-to-beat O'Rear campaign, made a "stand-pat" speech at Barbourville last Monday that would if it represented the real sentiment of the Republican party in Kentucky doom it to overwhelming defeat next November as it has been defeated in every State in which such leadership has prevailed.

Mr. Franks is an excellent stump speaker, one of the best campaigners in Kentucky, and like Senator Blackburn he is at his best in addressing an ultra partisan audience of his own political faith, stirring his auditors with panegyrics on the "grand old party" and its "glorious history," favorite terms with old time orators, Republican or Democrat, who were at their best when denouncing the opposition whether within or without the party, as "thieves and murderers," and appealing to the "boys in the trenches" to "up and at 'em."

Indeed one of our most distinguished Eastern Kentucky friends made the remark the other day that "Ed Franks made a regular Joe Blackburn speech."

A comparison of Senator Blackburn's speech at Owensboro and Mr. Franks' speech at Barbourville confirms this impression. "Our Joe" is a bourbon Democrat and "Ed" is a standpat Republican and both terms are practically synonymous in the politics of to-day. A "bourbon" or a "stand-patter" is a man who lives and glories in the past, who does not change or progress with the times, who declares that "whatever is right," and who is ready to read out of his party those who refuse to blindly follow the traditions and teachings of other days.

Senator Blackburn at Owensboro denounced Calhoun Powers as an "unhinged assassin," and abused the Republicans of the mountains in his old time style, and declared that the State ought to be re-districted so that the Republican party could elect but one member of Congress.

Mr. Franks at Barbourville in equally vituperative language denounced Judge O'Rear as an "apologist for lawlessness, a consort of lawbreakers and the candidate of night riders, whose nomination for Governor would strike a blow at the very cornerstone of civil liberty," etc.

Mr. Franks' bitter trade against Judge O'Rear, his vehement denunciation of him as the enemy of law and order, the defender of lawlessness and the abettor of night riders, will hurt no one in Kentucky so much as it will Mr. Franks. Such an intemperate speech should make the nomination of Mr. Franks impossible; if every other present candidate were to withdraw, and no one knows that better than our good friend from Owensboro.

We have heard a great deal of discussion of the motive for that speech and coming so soon after the Louisville conference at which it was agreed that the situation demanded an "anything-to-beat O'Rear" campaign the more plausible and generally accepted view we have heard is that Mr. Franks was delegated to go out after Judge O'Rear, involve him in a vituperative personal controversy that should disgust Republicans to the point of excluding "a plague on both your houses" and make the nomination of either impossible or unwise which would create a situation favorable to the nomination of Mr. Cox, a clean and clever gentleman, who happily for himself in the carrying out of such a program is without the "fatal gift of oratory" which has played havoc with the candidates from Owensboro and therefore has not felt himself called upon to announce his platform or declare his views on mooted public questions.

This may have seemed to Mr. Franks a clever plan of campaign but it will fail to please long before the Republicans assemble to nominate a State ticket.

The "stand-pat" stay where you are, never change politics, drain a turn coat, down with progressive brand of political loyalty, of which Mr. Franks and Senator Blackburn are among the most eloquent exponents in their parties, would have kept Kentucky always a solidly Democratic State and have made Republican nominations the empty honors they were before the shifting of party lines that have followed the political awakening of the last fifteen or twenty years.

* "Stand-pat" had been the accepted political shibboleth in Kentucky the thousands of splendid Democrats who have been voting and working with the Republicans in recent years would have remained with their old party associates.

Progressives like LaFollette, Cummins, Bristow, Clapp, Beveridge, Burne and Roosevelt whom Mr. Franks would read out of the Republican party because they refuse to follow the bourbon leadership of Aldrich, Cannon and Lorimer, are of the type of the Democrats, some of them a little less conspicuous, but none less independent and courageous, who have rebelled against the leaders of their party in Kentucky and joined hands with Republicans in working a political revolution in the old Commonwealth.

Mr. Franks is especially aggrieved because Judge O'Rear has dared to invade "my district" by making a speech at Hopkinsville, and by way of defense or explanation of the bitterness of his utterance at Barbourville he declared that any man who "come into my district and throws down the gauntlet" must prepare for the castigation his temerity deserves.

Mr. Franks was a Collector of Internal Revenue for twelve or thirteen years and his district, one of the five in Kentucky, covered the whole of the Western and Southwestern sections of the State. Would he keep Judge O'Rear out of that part of the State because it is in "my district?" Mr. Franks is no longer Collector and we cannot see any discourtesy to him in invading his late collection district.

The State of Kentucky is divided into three railroad districts, and Mr. Franks resides in the first containing forty or fifty counties in Western Kentucky. He would not think of barring Judge O'Rear from "my" railroad district.

There are seven Appellate Court districts, in one of which Mr. Franks lives. He would not think of closing the fifteen or twenty counties of "my" judicial district to his distinguished opponent.

There are eleven Congressional districts, containing an average of ten or twelve counties. The Second district, in which Mr. Franks resides, reaches clear across Kentucky, from the Indiana to the Tennessee line. Mr. Franks lives in Owensboro, on the Ohio river. Judge O'Rear spoke at Hopkinsville on the edge of Tennessee. This does not look like an invasion of Mr. Franks' home ballfield.

But, waving the point that Hopkinsville and Owensboro are on opposite sides of the State, why should Judge O'Rear be barred from speaking or presenting his claims to the people of this vast territory because it is "my district?" Mr. Franks has not explained why he is in any way entitled to claim as a right or a courtesy the undisputed support of this great section of the State in an important State campaign in which he is utterly out of touch with the views of the masses of his party and out of sympathy with the platform which that party must declare if it hopes to win the coming election.

What if it were determined, in the are these words of Mr. Cochran. He speaks from experience, the highest possible source of knowledge. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

interest of the "anything-to-beat O'Rear" campaign, to run a candidate against him from every Congressional, judicial or railroad district, would that compel him to stay closely at home for fear of being charged with want of courtesy to his opponents?

"My district" smacks of the vested rights claimed by the barons of feudal days.

Mr. Franks is greatly distressed over Judge O'Rear's now historic saying that "you cannot drive an idea into an Anglo-Saxon's head with a bayonet," which will ring from one end of Kentucky to the other with the approving plaudits of all good citizens as they study its meaning and significance and understand the sincerity and conviction of the man who uttered it. That one thought marks Judge O'Rear as a student and philosopher who would go to the root of an evil before prescribing a remedy, as the physicians of this day seek to eradicate disease by intelligently attacking its source rather than using heroic treatment to repress or cover up its outward symptoms.

When the people of Kentucky come to understand Judge O'Rear as do those who have for years enjoyed intimate relations with him they will find in him the highest and noblest type of public servant; a man who seeks to bring together in better understanding all the elements in our complex social and industrial life; a man who preaches and practices the doctrine of fair play and the square deal; a man who will not for personal gain or political clasp array the man who has little or nothing against his more fortunate neighbor who has prospered honestly, or the country against the city, or the mountains against the Blue Grass—in short an earnest advocate of the true brotherhood of a man.

We shall not in this connection discuss in any detail the merits of Mr. Franks' attack upon Judge O'Rear's attitude and utterances at the tobacco conference called by Governor Wilson. We have heard the Judge discuss this question quite thoroughly upon half a dozen occasions and have no fear of his ability to give a good account of himself upon the occasion of his next speech. He may not rise to the heights of denunciatory eloquence of our esteemed friend from Owensboro, and may not anatomize those whose views are not wholly in accord with his own, but what he says will command the attention and approval of the thinking people of the State.

Helpless as a Baby.

Valley Heights, Va.—Mrs. Jennie B. Kirby, in a letter from this place says: "I was sick in bed for nine months, with womanly troubles. I was so weak and helpless, at times, I couldn't raise my head off the pillow I commenced to take Cardui, and I saw it was helping me, at once. Now I can work all day." As a tonic, for weak women, nothing has been found for fifty years, that would take the place of Cardui. Try a bottle to-day. It will surely do you good. B-8

To tell the age of any horse, inspect the lower jaw of course; The six front teeth the tale will tell, And every doubt and fear dispel. Two middle uppers you behold Before the colt is two weeks old, Before eight weeks two more will come, Eight months the corners cut the gum The outside grooves will disappear From middle two in just one year; In two years from the second pair; In three years the corners two are bare. At two the middle uppers drop, At three the second pair can't stop, When four years old the third pair gets At five a full new set he shows, The deep black spots will pass from view. At six years from the middle two; The second pair at seven years; At eight the spot on each corner clears From middle nippler, upper jaw, At nine the black spots will withdraw The second pair at ten are bright, Blown flints the corners light, As time goes on the horseshoe know, The oval teeth three-sided grow, They longer get, project before Till twenty, when we know no more.

The chances of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

(A Special Department for Our Housekeepers. Contributions Accepted.)

RICE PUDDING WITHOUT EGGS.

Many cooks think they have to use eggs in making a rice pudding but a most delicate and palatable one can be made without any. Wash and pick over a half cup of rice. Put in a buttered pudding dish with a pint and a half of milk, half a cup of sugar a pinch of salt, and grated lemon rind. Bake two hours stirring frequently for the first hour and a half, then finish the baking to form a light crustover the top. Serve with cream.

CHEESE COURSE.

Roll cream cheese into balls nearly an inch in diameter; roll the balls in pistachio nuts, blanched and chopped. Pile the balls in the center of a chop plate, and surround with a wreath of orange or grape fruit marmalade. Surround the marmalade with hot toasted crackers. Serve at the close of luncheon or dinner in the place of the usual pudding pie or other sweet dish. If preferred, pass the cheese, marmalade and crackers on a tray in separate receptacles.

FOAM SAUCE.

Dissolve a tablespoonful of cornstarch in two tablespoonfuls of cold water, pour over it a cup of boiling water and cook until clear. Cream together a half cup of butter and of sugar and pour it over the boiling starch, stirring rapidly which causes it to foam. Flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla and two of vinegar.

CREAMED CAULIFLOWER AU GRATIN.

Let the cauliflower cook in boiled salted water until tender, then separate into flowerets and dispose in individual dishes; over the cauliflower in each dish turn one or two tablespoonfuls of cream sauce, sprinkle with buttered cracker crumbs and set into the oven, to brown the crumbs.

MINT SHERBERT.

Bruise one teacupful of fresh mint leaves. Pour over the juice of four lemons, and let stand for 30 minutes. Make a syrup from one pint of water and one pint of sugar. Pour over the mint and let stand until cold. Strain. Add a few drops of peppermint extract, the frothed whites of four eggs and freeze.

FROZEN ORANGES.

Peel one dozen oranges rub the peeling of three of them into one pint of sugar. Add the juice of two lemons, and stir over the fire until the sugar dissolves. Open the sections of the oranges remove the pulp, and add it to the sugar with one quart of water. Then turn into a freezer and freeze.

Orchard and Garden.

Keep the fruit of strawberries cool until the time to use or market them. Never pick berries for market when they are wet.

Beware of "red rust" in blackberry or blackcap bushes. When seen, promptly dig up and burn the infected plant, being careful not to scatter the fungous dust over healthy bushes.

Muzzle the horses when plowing or cultivating the orchard. Yes, and pad the whiffletrees. These precautions will prevent much damage to trees. Another hint: Pad the outer edges of the harrow.

No grain or grass crops in the young orchard, please; cultivation is best. Stir the soil every two weeks until August. It is a good plan to throw two or three forkfuls of manure around each tree, after a rain.

Watch for the little slugs—darkish, slimy fellows—that are likely to be on pear or cherry leaves now. Fine, dry dust, if thrown in the trees, will kill every slug it covers. Or almost any of the regulation orchard sprays will exterminate this pest.—Farm Journal.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to announce Hon C. P. Keown a candidate for Representative from Ohio county in the next General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Republican party.

We are authorized to announce Albert Leach a candidate for Representative from Ohio County in the next General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Republican party.

What a joke it would be on "Oily James" McCreary if Mr. Adams should out run him in the primary after all.

Let us have legislation which will put down the price of food stuff on the way between the farmer and consumer. Let the farmer have the very highest price possible. He does the work and takes all the chances.

Hartford now has an opportunity to secure a brick and tile factory which will start in with a force of not less than sixty men, provided she makes an effort and offers some inducement to secure it. Will our citizens make the best of the opportunity?

Congressman Ollie James seems to forget that his election will depend upon the Kentucky legislature and not upon the result of the primary July 1st. The primary election will do him very little good, if the legislature shows up with the majority Republican.

We will very soon enter upon a state election contest in Kentucky for state officers. As soon as that is over the presidential election will be in full swing so that we will have two years of political strife and turmoil. Again we arise to remark that our elections are too frequent.

All parties seem to be united on the question of good roads. However when it comes to providing a plan, fear that the same divisions may arise and prevent action as in the past. In the meantime Ohio county is going ahead laying the foundation for the best dirt roads of any county in Kentucky.

Either the local option laws of Ohio county are being frequently violated or else an immense amount of liquor is being shipped into Hartford. Almost every Saturday night witnesses scenes of carousing such as were rarely known here during the days of open saloons when we had the largest number licensed. On last Saturday night the streets were thronged with drunken men which culminated in a shooting in Hayti, and it is only a wonder that several men were not killed during the evening. Loud and boisterous language and quarrels on the streets were frequent and our citizens are loud in complaint of this open and notorious conduct. We are not at this time offering any criticism upon our city authorities, because we do not know where the blame lies but it does seem that our citizens, who are law abiding and deserving of peace and quietude, should be protected in some way against this notorious conduct upon the part of those who violate the law.

The friends of Hon. Alvis S. Bennett in every section of the State are urging him to become a candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals. Mr. Bennett is at present and has been for many years Secretary of the State Central Committee and in that capacity has given universal satisfaction to every element of the party, and by his efficiency and general bearing has made himself extremely popular with the rank and file, as well as the leaders. He would like to have the nomination for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, but he does not feel that he should announce his candidacy and make a campaign for the nomination and at the same time retain his present position on the committee which he thinks should be kept apart from contentions within the party, no matter how fair and honorable they may be. His friends, however, are pushing his candidacy and it is believed that the nomination will be tendered him, notwithstanding the fact that there are a number of other candidates, each of whom has good local support and are men well worthy of the position. The Fourth District will undoubtedly place Mr.

Bennett before the convention as a candidate for this position.

Land to Be Reclaimed.

Memphis, Tenn., June 11.—The Southern farmer is to be shown how, by reversing methods, he can profit to a like extent as the farmer of the West in reclaiming abandoned lands. If the arid lands of the Western States can be made fertile through irrigation the swamp lands of the South may likewise be made productive by drainage it is contended by experts of the Department of Agriculture, and to demonstrate it a "reclamation school" will start from Chicago Wednesday for a tour of the South over the Illinois Central lines.

Prof. W. C. Skuitz, of Narrows, has been elected as principal of the Fordsville High School for this year. He was graduated this year from the University of Kentucky, and is splendidly qualified in every way for the position. Other teachers have been elected as follows: Mrs. I. S. At 3:30 in the afternoon the members marched from the lodge hall to Oakwood cemetery, where a short service was held, and the graves of five brothers were decorated with flags of the order and flowers.

When a store advertises it shows that it values your trade enough to ask for it; you're considered to the extent of making it easy for you to know what is offered in needed goods; the store shows its willingness to go on record in its statements about stock and service; the advertising of an article as being of a certain quality, and at a stated price, is in a sense, a contract between the seller and the prospective buyer; the prices of advertised goods must be so low that competition can't meet them; advertising increases sales, enabling the store to accept smaller profits. These are some of the reasons why you should buy from stores that advertise. There are other reasons, and although not stated, you profit by them.

MELODIES OF OUR KENTUCKY HIGHLANDS OR SONGS THAT "JEST GROWED UP"

Heredity and Environment According To The Mountain Demosthenes.

(In Louisville Post.)

Some years ago the Rev. W. S. Hays, a boy from "Bloody Breckinridge," in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky was spending a vacation at his native home, Jackson, after a long missionary service in Japan. I heard one of his vacation sermons. By native dark complexioned, residence abroad had molded the mountaineer into something of a Mongolian. His tongue had been tipped with the involuntary twist that turned his great native land into the "Oonited States," in spite of the painful effort to subdue that and other parts of speech back into the dialect of his native hills. His facial expression had caught the Orient tone. His little one-year-old girl (as she then was), born in Japan of the purest Cumberland mountain parentage might have been the fruit of a long line of Mongolians reaching back to the Japanese Adam's apple tree. Respective champions of heredity and environment as most influencing mental and physical development might find this a puzzling case, with odds in favor of environment.

Judge Carlo B. Lytle, of Manchester, Clay county known on the stump and at the bar as the "Tough and Ready Demosthenes" of the mountains, holds to the theory that even the names of towns, rivers, creeks and other surroundings are impressed upon the character of the people. "What," he once asked the writer as we sat amusing on the shores of Goose creek, "what could he expect of Red Eye, Hoss creek, Big, Stinking, Cut Shin, Goose, Hell-for-Sartin and the like except disaster to the community?"

My friend was not pressed to guess what effect the name of Manchester, exchanged for "Winchester" (the latter, at that time, being much in evidence around Manchester,) might have, for Manchester was his home, where charity begins and sometimes abides.

Drawing his penell, the Judge jotted down "on the spur" and on a stray sheet of paper these impromptu lines:

When Red Eye Into Hoss Neck pours
His mossy moonshine dide,
Big Stinking sootlers, as he goes,
Old Hell-for-Sartin wide.

When Bull Skin Into Cut Shin runs,
And Cut Shin into Goose;
No wonder people get their guns
And (sometimes) turn 'em loose.

"Suppose," the Judge went on, musing half aloud, "our winding streams—just look at Goose creek, dimpling as it flows, none leveler on earth—suppose Goose creek and our other streamlets were led to heavenly music like 'Flow Gently Sweet Afton, Among Thy Green Braes; Bonnie Ayres Thou Saeet Gliding Kedron; Ye Banks and Braes O' Bonnie Doon' and other immortal melodies? Could there ever have been any shooting from behind these rocks? The very tenderness of name and song would melt into the heart to civilize, to sanctify and to soften."

The regular proposition "against" is rarely heard in the highlands. The college graduate, after a brief sojourn, catches himself running up "again" something. The wise judge the erudite lawyer utters his edicts from the bench or fulminates from the forum "agin" whatever stands in his way. Men and women whose education may be as liberal as the university can supply employ the sole idiom involuntarily after a brief stay. It shows what environment or accident either, may work.

And, by the way, what right has the cultured Ede to turn up his pointed nose? Some years ago I was incidentally associated for several months in the same household at Washington City with a cultured New England lady, some years past middle age, of the bluest Boston blue blood (to mention which strain would cause surprise), who had become deeply interested in General Ben Butler's flat-money fad, and drew her inspiration from reading newspaper reports rather than oral discussion. Her glasses were perhaps, not as good as her education; she invariably during her financial arguments, referred to General Butler's paper as "flat money." The treasury not being flat (when spread out), the good old lady very naturally misconceived the "flat."

It may surprise some of the "lettered swine" of the New England edge-grass and Kentucky bluegrass to learn that in our Kentucky Highlands I have never met a you-ers or a we-uns. It is not known how it happened, but such usage of good, old-time grammar is mostly confined to East Tennessee, and North Alabama. To have missed it is neither credit nor discredit to any section but it comes from "Chaucer's purest well of English undefiled,"—and blossoms all through our King James version of the Bible. "Unless ye become as these (little) ones, etc." "You (young) ones be ready for school." "We (young) shall perish if the boat capsize." "You-ers and we-uns, abound down there yet unless some fantastic school marm has run them out." If so, she has broken down the purest English while trying to correct an alleged error of speech.

"Ignorant mountaineers," indeed! The wisest and the best of our great, strong Anglo-Saxon blood inhabit there. They may not all be "cultured."

"Knowledge dwells in heads replete with thoughts of other men. Wisdom in minds attentive to their own."

The stranger there will meet with more generous hospitality, more unaffected courtesy, more devotion to good neighborship (in its broadest sense), more of the real Christ! The writer, on bitter, cold February day, having lost his gloves was riding haphazard from London to Manchester. A mountaineer, shivering on the roadside, rushed out into the mud and forced upon the horseman a pair of thick, home-made gauntlets, which left his own hands exposed. He would hear to no word of protest or proffer to pay.

"The gloves are yours, stranger you need 'em more'n I do, and all I charge is, pass 'em on to the next man." For an incidental kindness the mountaineer may bestow, his invariable injunction is, "Pass it on; pass it on to the next man who may need it!"

Of course we all rejoice in every movement for a better school system in the mountains as elsewhere in Kentucky, but the hope remains that her noble people may never become too cultured to be civilized. Some few of them (in times past) would kill an enemy for revenge, but not for robbery. Educate 'em to the point not to kill—they know how not to rob by instinct. Then, as a rule, the mountaineers will show a nobler population than the Blue-grass or the sedge grass.

Far out in a mountain county, thirty miles from a railroad or school house, lived a two-headed boy ten years old, in a humble log cabin (his parents were poor), which had no vestige of hook or printed page—not even a bible. At last a little log-house was built nearby in which a sweet, young lady consented to teach a public school. Sammy, wild-eyed, came forward to "matriculate."

"Samuel," the teacher asked, in her gentle way, "have you ever been to school before?"

"No-o-ome,"—he hesitated; then proudly lifting the untorn head—"but I read a book once!"

Look out for the mountain boy who reads a book once! His coming Father Abram, three hundred thousand strong, and when he goes there he'll be heard from. He comes of a race purer than American—of a race untainted as yet with any alien mixture—the pure, unadulterated Anglo-Saxon.

In the mountains, songs are sung that you can hear nowhere else. There is (or was only a very few years ago) an absence of the ragtime stuff which tinkle the ears of "civilized" groundlings. In most of these songs there breathes the wild, far-away melody—the tenderness of words and music like the wailing of the winds in mountain caves—human sympathy for the hero of the story whom misfortune (or crime) has overtaken. The hero may be wicked beyond all conscience, but it is he, not "the dirty policeman," who gets the sympathetic tear.

I caught the words—would I could write the music also—of John Hardy from pretty and petite Miss Rachel E. Hayes, youngest sister of Douglas Hayes, Breckinridge county-fame, who bears the unique distinction of having "earned" (after serving time) two pardons, one each from Gov. J. C. W. Beckham and Gov. W. T. Taylor. Little Rachel "sang the wild songs of her dear native land," accompanied on the melodeon, in a natural, not cultivated voice, soft, low sweet and silvery—the voice with which Jonny Lynd caught the world's ear from here mountain home in Switzerland.

John Hardy like other mountain songs as Miss Rachel expressed it, "Jest grewed up," little by little added as the inspiration came, but no unadorned from outside. Since 1898, as before, the Kentucky

Cumberland have furnished more than their quota of soldiers when called on. Mary and Venus find, each in the other, a pronounced affinity, more pronounced in the mountains than elsewhere.

Weather "John Hardy" be his real name or not, he is still serving a life sentence. He enlisted, among the first, in the Spanish-American war and got as far as Pensacola, where "the devil led him" into a game of poker "on the dark sea bar." "Losing out" and got a life-term. The song goes: In the game he skew the winner, tried to escape but was captured. JOHN HARDY.

John Hardy was a-standin' by the dark sea bar.

He was unconcerned in the game; A lady threw down a fifty cents, sayin' "Deal John Hardy, in the game, poor boy, Deal John Hardy in the game."

John Hardy threw down another fifty cents.

And says, "This money will play! And the very first man who wins my money I'm going to blow him away."

Poor boy, he was going to blow him away!

The poor boy did lose his money, including the "Lady's" fifty-cent piece, "blow" the winner away, made a break for Kentucky, but was captured somewhere on the historic Elkhorn, presumably between Lexington and Frankfort.

Oh, boys, I'm charged with a hanging crime.

Of which you know the offense; Murdering that man at the dark sea bar.

All for fifty cents; Poor boy! all for fifty cents!

John Hardy had married a pretty wife And she was all dressed in red; She stepped up to the jail house door And it almost killed her dead!

Poor boy, it almost killed her dead!

Johnny was a-standin' at the depot station,

So dark he could not see, When a dirty old policeman took him by the arm,

Saying, "Johnny, come go along with me."

Poor boy, Johnny, come go along with me."

The fifth verse of the song belongs among the first of a dozen or more, but I quote the sequence as I recall the singer.

The following was sung by sweet little Rachel. This song, also, "Jest grewed up" line at a time. It is the farewell of another soldier to his sweetheart. "It's been my sad misfortune," he says (with mental reservation no doubt) "a soldier for to be." Pensacola, however, was only 300 miles away, not 5,000.

"I'M GOING TO JOIN THE ARMY."

He: So fare you well, my darling, So fare you well, my dear, I'm going to join the army, I'm going to volunteer!

It's been my sad misfortune A soldier for to be, Oh, be contented, darling, And don't you weep for me.

I'm going to Pensacola, To tarry for awhile, So far from you, my darling, About five thousand miles!

She: She wrung her Rly-white hands, So mournfully she cried: You're going to join the army, And in that war you'll die, Your waist it's too slender, Your fingers long and small, Your cheeks too red and rosy To face a cannon ball!

He: I know my waist is slender, My fingers long and small, But it would not make me shudder To see ten thousand fall!

She: I hear the cannons roaring, The balls are flying high, The drums and fifes are sounding, To drown the dreadful cry! In the center you'll be wounded, In the center you'll be slain; It'll break my heart asunder If I never see you again!

He: The ships all stand at anchor, The boys all dressed in blue— You're going away to join them, And, love, what shall I do?

I'll sail around the enemy My fortune for to try; I'll think of you, my darling, And oft sit down and cry.

If you'll portray a single life Throughout the great campaign, I'll marry you, my darling,

When I return again. Then fare you well, my darling, Then fare you well, my dear, I'm coming back to see you It'll take ten thousand years.

It is hoped that the faithful couple were not obliged to "portray the single life" for even one year, to say nothing of ten thousand, but that the hero returned with the same easy checks that had faced the cannon ball. The reader will agree that there is more (perhaps) in the music of these songs, of which I heard many, than in the wording, but to be touched almost to tears, one must hear the weird, melancholy cadences of the voice.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures. If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

EVANSVILLE, ADUCAA, NASHVILLE, ST. LOUIS, SPRINGFIELD, MEMPHIS.

A Glorious Change. MOUNTAIN ECHOES.

The Republican party in Kentucky has a splendid opportunity offered it—to elect a Governor and to also secure control of the Legislature. As the days go by it becomes more and more certain that Judge E. C. O'Rear will be the nominee for Governor, and that a splendid running ticket will be named with him. The nomination of Judge O'Rear will be a pleasing one to not only the rank and file of the Republican party, but thousands of Democrats will vote for him in the final election in November. His position in regard to the county unit bill, redistricting of the State in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, his advanced position as to education and general advancement of the State in every direction, are looked upon with favor by the leading men of all parties, and party lines will be already obliterated in a desire to vote for a strong, clean, earnest, consecrated man.

In strong contrast to Judge O'Rear, the Democratic party offers a candidate who is the choice, not of the rank and file of the Democracy, but of a few politicians within the party whose desire it is to secure control of the party machinery. The candidacy of Senator McCreary has failed to arouse much enthusiasm in many quarters, and the party now sees its mistake in putting him up for gubernatorial honors. But the die is cast, and McCreary will follow in the footsteps of Hager as a sacrificial lamb to be led to the slaughter.

While we believe that Judge O'Rear will receive nearly twice as many votes as McCreary in November, there is cause for still greater rejoicing among Kentucky Republicans. Where nominations have been made for the Legislature strong, clean, able men have been selected, harmonious in every instance. On the other hand, the Legislative conventions of the Democracy have in many instances been bitterly contested, and the party has been split up as a result. The trend of the times is toward a majority for the Republicans in both branches of the Legislature.

It will indeed be a glorious consummation if the Republicans secure control of the Legislature in Kentucky. With a Republican administration and with a Republican Legislature to back it up, great good will be accomplished in relieving the State of conditions which have retarded the progress of this Commonwealth.

Republicans should get busy and see to it that the very ablest men are selected as candidates for the Legislature, and then bend every effort to elect them in November. If we are successful, the State will go forward with leaps and bounds and legislation will be enacted which will invite outsiders to come and be one of with us.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Four-Fifths of Your Store Patrons Were Won by Advertising—And Four-Fifths of These Would Be Lost if You Stopped Advertising!

Newspaper advertising is a part of all worth-while store-service—a part of it which patrons particularly value. For it keeps them in touch with your store-events, your sales, the arrival of new stocks, the showing of novelties, the buying opportunities which your store must create for its friends.

The advertising becomes the link between the store and its clientele. They expect the store's advertising to SERVE THEM—"not now and then," not partially; but ALWAYS, and fully! To curtail the advertising—in volume or frequency—would make the same impression on them as though you moved into smaller quarters and cut down your force of clerks and workers. To INCREASE your advertising to make it more complete as "store News," as a "market letter," as a bulletin of bargains—will have the effect of enlisting a lot of new store-friends every day, and of winning anew all of the old ones!

BASE BALL NEWS.

Livermore and NoCreek will play at Millin tomorrow afternoon. A good game is expected.

The Rob Roy team gave Beaver Dam a terrible defeat last Saturday to the tune of 16 to 10. Batteries for Beaver Dam, A. Peters C; D. Taylor P. Batteries for Rob Roy M. Williams P; Roy Williams C. Umpire C. Taylor.

Prof. C. B. Shown, of Bode, is one of the most enthusiastic fans in the county. He witnessed the game at Hartford Saturday, and told us that he enjoyed our baseball column immensely. He said he goes from his work in the field every Friday morning to read the dope we hand out. Many thanks, old man.

Rob Roy will play against Provo, in Butler county, Saturday.

On Saturday June 24 a double header will be pulled off in this city. Hartford will play Livermore and Beaver Dam will play Livermore. Both games will be played in the afternoon.

We missed our prediction, and glad of it too, about Island putting it on Hartford last Saturday.

The Madisonville Stars, colored, played the Hayti team here Saturday morning, and didn't do a thing but walk off with a score of 16 to 6, in favor of the Stars. Sunday afternoon the Coons played again and the second time the Haytians got landed on and worse than ever, the score being 23 to 3.

Genus Morton porter at Taylor's barber shop, was at the ballgame Sunday afternoon and rooting for his home team, when a foul ball struck him near the eye. Damage was heavy; no insurance.

Cleve Her, who takes more interest in baseball than any one fan in Hartford, and is recognized as an umpire of ability, has received a letter from Matt Foley, sporting editor of the Louisville Evening Post, concerning some points that had been in dispute by local fans. The letter says: "There is now no pitcher's box. Instead a plate, 24 inches by 6 inches situated 90 feet from the plate, in straight line running from the plate to second base, is used. The pitcher shall keep one foot on the plate while delivering the ball. Any number of players may run up and down the lines in making a put out of a runner caught between the base. Any player may run for another but the man who is taken out can not return to the game."

We know of some fellows that are feeling rather tough over the result of the Hartford-Island game, Saturday. They bet on the wrong ponies.

Al Barnett was in the trim for pitching Saturday and if he had been given the support that the Island players gave their pitcher Hartford would have had a walk over.

Island really earned only four of the scores of the game Saturday. The others were made on errors, which should have been avoided.

Les Stevens, of Beaver Dam, likes our "dope" and is glad to get the latest tips right off the reel.

Seems that it is about time for the Fats and Leans to get up another game. Some class to playing of that kind.

A big game is scheduled for the Fourth of July, at the Old Soldiers Reunion at Centertown. In the forenoon Hartford will play against Island. In the afternoon Centertown will play the winning team of the morning scrap.

The score of the game of Island vs. Hartford, Saturday afternoon was as follows:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	T
Island	1	0	0	7	1	0	0	0	4
Hartford	2	2	0	1	7	0	4	1	17

Home runs, H. Kling for Hartford. Three base hits, W. Wakeford for Hartford.

The game at Hartford scheduled for tomorrow afternoon is Hartford vs. Beaver Dam.

Mollen will play Island at Mollen Sunday afternoon.

We are just beginning to realize what potent factors Memorial day and the Fourth of July have been in the development of baseball.

Gov. Gray, owned by Capt. Jim Will Thuma, won the twenty-ninth running of the Latonia Derby, defeating Star Charter by four lengths, with Messenger Boy two lengths further back. The Editors Pulpit.

Lula Taylor, a Wisconsin editor, at a meeting years ago of the State Editorial association, made an address which has recently been unearthed and is going the rounds of the press to-day. Mr. Taylor was an editor and the wonderful rhetoric of his address is but the reflex of his facile pen. The following is a part of the address:

"The editor stands on the widest pulpit known to modern society. The lawyer has a narrow sphere before him; the senator and representative—the walls hedge their voice; the minister has his parish walls about his church. There is a pulpit that now has no limit—it is the press. It is, literally the voice of one that cries in the wilderness; for all across the populous land, the daily papers speak; and there is not a modern civilization, a place of power that can compare with this Rev. DeWitt Talmage once said: In the clanking of the printing press I hear the voice of the Lord Almighty proclaiming to all the dead nations of the earth: 'Lazarus! come forth!' and to the retreating armies of the darkness: 'Let there be light.'"

"Come with me into the composing room."

"Come here to this case. Look at the multitude of little boxes filled with pieces of metal. What are they? They are civilizers—they are the types. Look at them. They are not dead but sleeping. There is a soul in every one of them. Collectively they are a dictionary reduced to its lowest denomination. They look dull enough, but all the glorious possibilities that the human heart can hope for are in their possession—you have but to learn the secret they so closely keep. If you but know how to pick out and properly arrange a handful of those type, immortal fame would be yours. There are finer strains there than Homer ever sang; there is eloquence unspoken yet; there is keener wit, more profound logic there is more careful pathos, more persuasive prayer than tongue ever uttered or ear heard. Get it out, if you can. The types are there and are patient of delay."

"Let us go into the pressroom. Here is where the wondrous transformation is wrought; where matter becomes the exponent of the mind. The forms are properly placed. The great press moves slowly; its arms reaching for their strong embrace. Stop the press! The giant rests again. There is an error of statement to be corrected or an objectionable article to be withdrawn. The types are taken out and borne away—corpus of a dead thought."

"Look now again at the mass of type—dead! Inert as the ground you tread upon! But see! The white sheet has fallen upon their upturned faces—the touch of the press has baptized them—the life that was in them has passed upon paper and the new creation is pregnant with thought—a thing with a soul, for it that was a sheet so blank before a living power now. A chance has passed over it as marvelous as if in an instant the unwrinkled face of a boy should put on the furrows of age, the lines of care, the impress of manhood's experience, thought and toil. Thus the paper is born and goes out into the world. No messenger can overtake it. Its utterance is unalterable now. It may be explained, but not erased. The printed word can no more be recalled than the departed spirit can be wooed back to the body which it has just left."

narrow, selfish unkind soul has no place in the editorial room.

His mind must be broad enough to embrace all the rights of humanity, and he must be a philosopher, a judge in short, a man, in all the elements which touch the vicissitudes of society and especially the highest perfection that should attain in his community.

Why Don't you Use Both Hands?

Can you use one hand exactly as well as the other?

Of course you can't. Who can?

But isn't it a duty you owe to yourself your family, to fix this so that your whole world doesn't have to stop moving because of a paltry burn on your right forefinger, a tiny cut in the palm of your right hand, or maybe even a sprained wrist?

We speak in wondering admiration of the ambidextrous person, who uses both hands with equal facility.

Any yet this accomplishment has but easy reach of everyone!

A good deal of practice, a good dose of patience and you are master of yourself and your work, no matter what ill may befall that now indispensable right hand of yours.

You use two hands over and over every day for tasks really needing only one.

Think of the men and women who have but one hand to work with and who are yet independent. There's a one-handed stenographer in the East who can keep up with any two-handed expert. There's a colored mammy in the South who, with one arm off a the shoulder has supported herself and educated four children, by taking in washing. And she wrings her clothes by hand too.

There are one-handed swimmers and ball players and seamstresses and women who do all their own housework.

If such people can learn the use of one hand through necessity, why can't you for convenience?

Most of us are wasting half the hand power given us.

In the business of the office, in the business of the home, you need every resource you have to reach success. Come on, and make that awkward left hand do its duty.

THEY WANT THE EARTH!

From every point of the compass the Mail Order Octopus is reaching its myriad hands to grasp and grab and gobble the retail business of your own town. Nothing that is grabbable and gobbleable escapes the Mail Order clutch unless the people stand together against the Octopus.

The Mail Order people want the earth, and unless you refuse to trade with them and systematically patronize your home merchants and manufacturers they will get your part of the earth and you will have to get off it.

A word to the wise is a whole language.

A Novel Distillery.

An exchange says: "A distillery in Tennessee will be run on the grist mill plan. That is to say, patrons can send their corn to it and instead of meal, receive what it makes in whiskey, less the toll. It is not known if the internal revenue officials will stand for such a proposition but we do know that the devil and his angles sit up late at night to think out some new scheme to induce people to use the insidious leads to degradation and death."

Vacation Don'ts.

Don't anticipate having a good time unless you can stand disappointment. Don't go away from home, or you will not be comfortable. Don't fail to look forward to your vacation, as that is all the fun you will get out of it anyway.

Don't stay at home, or you will long for a change.

Don't save up your money to lose it at poker before you start.

Don't fail to have a goodly wad so that you will not have to deny yourself anything.

Don't go to the city and be hot and crowded.

Don't go to the country and be eaten by mosquitoes and be choked with dust.

Don't go to the mountains and be lonely.

Don't go to the seaside where you'll have to mix with the vulgar herd.

Don't pay any attention to those rules. Advice has spoiled many a vacation.
